SUBJECT OF THE PROJECT: FESTIVALS OF INDIA

DOCUMENTATION FOR THE PROJECT DONE ON HTML

The project that I have developed in my computer class is about "Festivals of India". The salient information has been electronically notified through five web documents.

The first page is our home page, where only mentioned the definition of Festival, a short description on the Festivals of India and Important Festivals in India.

The respective pages are about the descriptions and images of Important Festivals in India which is organised in different locations and by different community in our country.

The entire thing is created upon the hyperlinking format so that the user, who is yet to see the information can feel very much comfortable, e.g. can open any web page through the Home page displaying the link page where we click Go to Next Page automatically displaying next web page. On the other hand click Home Page hypertext to return to the home page.

In the next pages I have described the source code in details and side by side the impression of the screen outputs for each and every web page that has been attached.

The Source Code for each and every page has been developed through HTML scripting language.

CONCLUSION

I have tried my best to complete my HTML project work successfully amidst amicable and ambience of constant co-operation &remarkable assistance. Varied tasks may be performed through various modules for easy accessibility. However, this recently developed system may not provide all sorts of facilities. Although there was no lack of endeavour on my part to develop this system but it is quite possible that there may be some potentials to develop it further which may due to lack of front-end application.

Inspite of all adversities I am elated to be able to complete these projects gathering huge experience in the process which will certainly help me in future.
